Dimeo Construction Company Completes The Rose Center at Yale University

New Haven, CT – Dimeo Construction Company recently completed construction of a new police station for Yale University, designed by William Rawn Associates. The facility serves as an extension of the New Haven Police and provides 911 back up to the city police station. The 35,000 sf building consists of 2 levels above grade and one below grade. Additional features include an evidence processing area, a firearms training area, a dispatch communications room, locker rooms and areas for community meetings including a computer training area. Designed to serve community needs in addition to its primary function as a police station, the facility is home to the new Dixwell-Yale University Community Learning Center, which will provide athletic, mentoring, and tutoring programs, run by Yale staff, students, and police. The project was commissioned and developed by Yale University Properties with support from the Rose Companies.
